Microcredit

2014-03-12

Microcredit consists in a small bank loan destined to support people who have no access to bank credit, but who want to start an economic activity on their own and therefore gather personal skills and conditions which may anticipate the success of their initiative.

The process of microcredit does not only consist in giving credit; the applicants also have guaranteed support in the preparation of the investment file and after the financing process, in the resolution of the problems they may face as the business carries on.
